Golf Courses

PENHA LONGA ATLANTICO: Considered one of the 30 best golf courses in Europe, being in Sintra helps, being in the mountains makes almost everything. With 27 holes designed by respected Robert Trent Jones Jr., according to experts, a golf course should be built in the middle of nature. The Penha Longa Atlantico Championship could not be more in line.

PESTANA BELOURA

Located at the foot of the Sintra mountain range, with fairways that range from more than 40,000 eucalyptus, pine and magnolia trees, this course, designed by renowned American architect Rocky Roqmore, challenges the skill and imagination of golfers of all levels. From gentle rippling the course stretches over 5,573 meters with 18 holes. With Par 72 where every fairway has a different surrounding, between lakes and waterways, it is a course you will not want to miss out on if you enjoy playing in addition to the game. Self-sufficient with regard to watering the field is irrigated from its own water reservoir while remaining in perfect condition for the game. The most characteristic holes are the 7 and the 17. In hole 7 the challenge is to cross the lake that crosses the fairway. Game strategy is fundamental if you want to get in a few strokes the green is well protected, left and right, by bunkers. The tee shot of the Tee 17 requires precision since with a little shot you can easily miss the fairway that lies between a lake on your left and out of bounds on the right. The course is complemented by excellent facilities and qualified instructors. The magnificent clubhouse incorporates the golf shop where you can find rental equipment and other equipment that you may need for your game. ESTORIL

The Estoril golf course has been in existence since 1929 in its first nine-hole version and was commissioned by Fausto Figueiredo, holder of the game concession at the Casino do Estoril. Its first architect was Jean Gassiat and the 18-hole course that followed was designed in 1945 by Mackenzie Ross, one of the best architects of golf courses in the world. Subsequently, the field was modified to allow the construction of a part of the Lisbon / Estoril motorway, which was designed by the French architect Jean Jean. In this transformation hole number 9 disappeared, there was a change in the course of hole number 13 - the famous hole of the Patiño - that now has a dogleg to the right, being the second shot thrown from the place where the old green was situated; it is now in a higher position. With the disappearance of hole number 9 it was necessary to build another hole, which is now the 13, a par 3 of 160 meters. Finally, hole number 16 had its green redesigned, but still being a par 3 of 186 meters, less 15 meters, so that the former, considered by many players as one of the best holes of Portuguese golf courses. The pair is 69 (34 35), a total of 5313 meters. Internally, the Estoril golf course has another nine-hole course normally used by beginners, the Blue Course. considered by many players as one of the best holes of Portuguese golf courses. QUINTA da MARINHA

The Quinta da Marinha Golf Course in Cascais has 18 holes with 5870 meters of pure nature and great challenges. Designed by the legendary Robert Trent Jones, this par 71, has fantastic views of the Atlantic Ocean and Sintra Mountains. It's a Robert Trent Jones style course with Greens and raised Tee's, several bunkers and also some lakes. All the holes are different, you will have to use all the clubs in the bag and play with strategy to make a good result.

OITAVOS DUNES

Oitavos Dunes represents all the good things about Golf Links, ocean breezes, fast game conditions and a golf course carved by nature. The world's most respected golf ranking is published biannually by Golf Magazine. In September 2015 the Oitavos Dunes jumped 7 places on the list to be considered the 58th best field in the world and the second best in continental Europe. The recognition is the result of several improvements and changes in the field, aiming to achieve greater heights for Oitavos Dunes and for golf in Portugal.
